Martha Won't Go

MIAMI BEACH — Martha Mitchell emphatically reiterated yesterday that she is through with politics and has no intention of attending the Republican National Convention.

She placed a call to The Washington Post from her apartment in Washington to clear up confusion in the newspaper that she might be coming down here for President Nixon's nomination.

"I am a private person," said Mrs. Mitchell, wife of the former Attorney General. "I have said before that I am through with politics, and I am. I have bought an apartment in New York and intend to move there as soon as we can get away.

"I am tired of all this speculation and innuendo and would very much like to be left alone."
